The ramifications of Korea's war against Japan are felt closer to home as Korean citizens living in Japan are branded as "outsiders." Forced to wear identifying armbands, these people are ostracized by the Japanese populace and are forced into Korean ghettos. The segregation takes a turn for the worse as Koreans are herded onto trains and sent to war camps. All the while, Korean and Japanese armed forces wage all-out war against each other on land, sea and air. How long before the rest of the world enters the bloodbath?
